

The course is located at Bicentennial Riverfront Park (131 E Hydraulic Ave, Yorkville). The 1,100 foot-long bypass chute allows canoes, kayaks, and tubers to travel downstream safely around the Glen D. Palmer Dam without having to portage. It also provides a recreational amenity for kayakers to play in the river. The Fox River drops almost 6 feet between the eastern and western edges of the chute with portage points provided at both ends of the facility. A 12 foot wide concrete path allows paddlers to walk their canoes, kayaks, or tubes back up to the chute to travel down the chute again (motorized vehicles, bicycles, and skateboards are not allowed on the pathway).
